Tiamat (Enūma Eliš)

Babylonian salt-sea of first chaos, paired with fresh-water Apsu. Younger gods grow loud; Apsu is slain; Tiamat makes war, births monsters, gives Qingu the Tablet of Destinies. Marduk kills her, splits the body into heaven and earth, takes the tablet, orders the world. She is chaos-water, later read as dragon. The epic crowns Marduk, not the Lord of Scripture. Chaos is not a co-eternal rival of Yahweh. Leviathan / Tiamat-talk in this album is creature-boast to refuse, not a god to consult.

Job 41 — in detail

God answers Job with Leviathan: Can you draw it with a hook? Job cannot covenant with it, leash it, or fill its skin with barbs. Scales shut. Pride is king over the proud. Breath and deep boil at its passing. The point is not a field-guide. The point is: what you cannot master, God already holds. Psalm 74: He broke the heads. Psalm 104: it plays in His sea. Isaiah 27:1: the Lord's hard, great, strong sword slays the twisting serpent. No dualism. No Marduk-bargain. The Sword in this album is the Word — Jesus Christ.
